Temasek Seeks Tie-ups to Deploy $5b/year in India

Bloomberg

Singapore's Temasek Holdings Pte is looking for strategic partners as it seeks to deploy between $3 billion to $5 billion a year in India, betting that the country can become a top driver for growth.

The state investor is planning to hire another four to five investment professionals, bringing its India team to more than 20 people, Temasek India head Ravi Lambah said in an interview. Lambah is also the head of investment group.

The firm could commit as much as $10 billion to the country in three years, and the deployment could be through a mix of partnerships and more capital in public equities, he said.

Temasek has been ramping up investments in India in the last five or six years, buoyed by the performance of its own portfolio, attractive demographics and increasingly deeper capital markets. The firm is doubling its investment rate annually in the country, targeting banks, financial operations, health-care, industrials, technology and consumer sectors, said Lambah. It's also looking at decarbonisation and energy transition opportunities.

"A decade ago, could we take a $1 billion-plus position in a listed bank in India? I think it would have been harder," Lambah said in an interview in Mumbai. "Now we can do it over multiple companies, including banks."

About 60% of Temasek's investments are direct stakes, largely in financial services. The rest are mostly indirect exposure to underlying companies like Bharti Airtel Ltd, through its investment in Singapore Telecommunications Ltd., and Vistara through the investment in Singapore Airlines Ltd., according to Lambah.

"We like financial services especially banks because they're a good proxy to economic growth," Lambah said.

Temasek holds shares in publicly traded ICICI Bank Ltd., according to data compiled by Bloomberg.

The $284 billion money manager has identified four investment themes for the decade: the future of consumption, sustainable living, longer lifespans and digitization.

"India is amongst the few countries where we found opportunities that fit all the four themes," Lambah said. The firm is bullish on India because of the increasing savings rate, an improvement in government stability and policy consistency.

Southeast Asia has a lot of potential, but is "a harder place" because the countries are all different, Lambah said. "The key question comes down to investible opportunities really as against the country's potential."

Temasek remains committed to India, though big, winning bets on companies like Alibaba Group Holding are becoming scarce.

RESETTLEMENT AND REGENERATION PROJECT

New Dharavi will Produce Many Millionaires, No Slumdogs: Adani

In an open letter, Gautam Adani says mega project will aim for 'comprehensive and holistic redevelopment'

Our Bureau

Mumbai: Adani Group chairman Gautam Adani said he intends to not only transform Mumbai's Dharavi into a modern city centre but also preserve and promote the local micro enterprises and small industries. The Adani Group has recently been awarded the ambitious project to redevelop 645 acres of Dharavi - one of Asia's largest urban slum clusters in the heart of Mumbai city.

In an open letter on Wednesday, Adani maintained that the transformation of Dharavi is arguably one of the world's largest urban resettlement and regeneration projects which will touch more than a million lives. "Rehabilitation entails the resettlement of not only the residential units but also of diverse establishments of various sizes and scales dealing with trading, shopping and other business transactions. The entire ecosystem and business fabric of diverse and distinct trades thriving in Dharavi will be rehabilitated and rehoused," he said.

"I intend to transform Dharavi into a modern city hub by looking at ways and means to support and strengthen existing micro enterprises and small industries and by promoting new-age jobs with a specific focus on youth and women," he wrote.

Sectoral experts and civil society will be involved and rehabilitation of livelihoods could involve a combination of training centres focused on upskilling, common facility centres for product-based and service-based entrepreneurship models, R&D centres, data centres and MSME helpdesks, in Dharavi and directed by Boyle.

among other things. The project could also look at the creation of organised and systemic marketplaces in line with the Open Network for Digital Commerce (ONDC).

Adani said the redevelopment of Dharavi was a unique project in a league of its own and will aim for "comprehensive and holistic redevelopment as it caters to the housing and rehabilitation needs of both eligible and ineligible residents".

Adani's note comes a day after the Bombay High Court allowed Dubai-based Seclink Technology Corporation to challenge the government resolution to award the Dharavi slum redevelopment project to the Adani Group. The government resolution was made last Thursday.

In the letter, Gautam Adani added that redevelopment plans will include amenities like gas, water, electricity, sanitation and drainage, healthcare and recreational facilities, and open spaces, as well as a world-class hospital and a school. "God willing, the likes of Danny Boyle will discover that the new Dharavi is producing millionaires without the slumdog prefix," he wrote, referring to the acclaimed 2008 film Slumdog Millionaire set in Dharavi and directed by Boyle.

Subsidised Tomato to Cost ₹70 per kg

New Delhi: The Union government has reduced prices of subsidised tomatoes to ₹70 per kg from Thursday from ₹80 per kg now to provide relief to common man from high retail prices.

The Centre is selling tomatoes to people at a subsidised rate of ₹80/kg in Delhi-NCR and some other key cities through the National Cooperative Consumers' Federation of India (NCCF) and NAFED.

The all-India average retail prices of tomatoes is ruling at nearly ₹120 per kg, although the key kitchen item is selling as high as ₹245 per kg at some places. In the national capital, the rate has come down to ₹120 per kg.

The tomatoes procured by the NCCF and NAFED had been retailed, initially, at ₹90 per kg and then reduced to ₹80 per kg from July 16, it added. —PTI
